Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"My daughter, Octavia, would have been in her grave today, had it not been for that fine medicine, Cardui," writes Mrs. Laura Lawrence, of Drennon Springs, Ky.

"Nothing I tried helped my daughter, until she had taken Cardui. I had sent for the doctor, when I thought of your medicine and got a $1 bottle. When she had taken four doses she became all right. I often recommend Cardui to my friends."

Your druggist sells Cardui with full instructions for use on the bottle.

Breeders Attention! Name in Breeders' Directory.

Stock breeders from this County who will be represented in the Missouri Live Stock Breeders' Directory, to be issued from the office of T. C. Wilson, Secretary of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture, Columbia, Mo., are here shown. These are all that have reported up to date. Any others who care to have their names inserted must notify Mr. Wilson at once, giving name and address of owner, the name of each breed of horses, cattle, sheep or hogs, and the number of animals of each breed that are registered and the number that are entitled to register. It costs you nothing more than postage. This directory will be a valuable advertising medium for the owner and for the County and the State. No reports have been received from this County. If your name belongs on the list and does not appear there the fault will be yours.

OSTEOPATHIC TREATMENT.

(From Osteopathic Health.)
(Published by direction of Dr. W. J. SMITH, Osteopathic Sanitarium, Ironton, Mo., to whom application for further information may be made.)

HABIT SPASMS, "COLDS," ADENOID GROWTHS, TONSILLITIS.

Is there any twitching of the muscles of the face? Or does the head jerk at times? Or do you ever notice a spasmodic movement of hand or foot? Is he apt to spill water when drinking?

Does the child catch cold easily? Does he breathe through his mouth? Does a thickened speech indicate the presence of adenoid growths? Does he complain of headache? Is his vision impaired? Are his tonsils enlarged, and does he have frequent attacks of tonsillitis?

And what of his parents? Have you (or has your better—or worse—half) bequeathed to your child a nervous temperament? Is there sick-headache on either side of the house?

By this time you are wondering if I am mad or only joking. As though either the mother's sick-headache or the child's bad dreams could have anything to do with rheumatism!

I assure you that I am very much in earnest, and ask you to bear with these questions patiently. Read what follows, and you may have cause to congratulate yourself. It may save your child much suffering, and yourself much anxiety. Early recognition of the nature of obscure symptoms, followed by intelligent treatment to remove the cause, will save to a life of comfort and usefulness many children who would otherwise develop into physical wrecks. In this instance, as in so many others, "intelligent treatment" is best administered by an osteopath.

To make myself clear I would state that there are several types of rheumatism; and we are now not considering the form in which there is acute inflammation of a joint or joints, with fever and severe pains. The form under discussion is a constitutional condition, and it is by far the commonest manifestation of the disease in childhood. The wide variations in the symptoms, and the difficulty in tracing back from symptoms to cause, frequently lead to errors in diagnosis. Accurate knowledge and keen insight are required in order to correctly interpret the cause.

DEFECTIVE ELIMINATION THE SECRET.

In general, we may say that we find in these cases a retention of the toxins or poisons formed within the body. This means that somewhere in the chain of processes of vital functioning, somewhere between the intake of food, drink and air, and the rejection of the waste, there is a defect in the system.

What are spoken of as growing pains in the joints or muscles are therefore due to the accumulation of the waste products which ought to be thrown off. Similar pains elsewhere, like a "stitch" in the side, or a short momentary abdominal pain, are often to be explained in the same way.

Irritability of the nervous system is another expression of auto-intoxication. The nerve centers are affected by retained poisonous matters, or by the formation of harmful substances through in digestion or mal-assimilation.

A pale, anemic child is often found possessed of an irregular heart, or to have a defect in the organs of respiration which interferes with the oxidation of blood. Poor blood, in turn, cannot furnish sufficient nutrition to the tissues, hence the constitutional trouble.

It is easy to see how an unstable nervous system may through cerebral irritability induce the night terrors and frightful dreams, so that this symptom may be readily ascribed to the constitutional fault—incomplete elimination. Not all cases come under this head. A perfectly healthy child may have an attack due to an overloaded stomach. Repeated attacks, however, should be regarded as a warning, and a thorough osteopathic examination of the child be made.

Emma M. Stevenson.

Died—At the home of her sister, Mrs. Lee Dunn, Sabula, Mo., after a short and painful illness of pneumonia, Thursday, January 12, 1911, at 8 o'clock P. M., Mrs. Emma M. Stevenson, aged 19 years, 6 months and 11 days. The funeral was held the following day at 2:30 P. M., the services being conducted by Rev. Cox, of Des Arc, Mo. The remains were interred in the cemetery at Emily's Chapel, on Carver Creek, a large concourse of friends attending.

Deceased was born in Illinois, July 1st, 1891, and came to Missouri with her parents, at the age of four years and was reared in Sabula. She was the daughter of James Thompson and the late Harriet Thompson, being one of five children born to them. The others with the father survive and feel the direct affliction known to those who love in the tie of consanguinity. Just one month and five days ago the loving mother and devoted wife was taken from the family, and so soon God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to take Emma home. The grief-stricken family have the sympathy of the entire community. Emma was united in marriage to Chester M. Stevenson, October 1st, 1910, living a married life a period of three months and twelve days. Their married life was as bright with promise as the cloudless morning skies, until the icy hand of death reached out and took sweet Emma home. She became a Christian at the age of 14 years, and lived a true Christian life. She was kind and affectionate and loved everybody, and was beloved by all who knew her. She was industrious and intelligent and had a determination for an education. She taught the primary room of the Annapolis school this term, and taught the best school they ever had. The little ones were passionately fond of her and were shocked by her untimely death. Being so interested in her work that during her illness she described a battle and imagined the people of Sabula and Annapolis were fighting and that her brother was wounded. When he came to her bedside and she realized it was not true, she shouted and praised the Lord for victory that her brother was safe. At times during her illness she was conscious and expressed herself as not fearing death, only regretted parting with her recently wedded husband. To him who is left to bear as best he may the burden put upon him who may attempt consolation—only the soothing hand of time can allay the anguish of the stricken heart.

One of her favorite hymns was "The Pearl of Great Price." The entire community was shocked by her death, a sensation that words cannot express of heartfelt sympathy for the bereaved ones. The saddest funeral ever witnessed, the choir choked down with tears till they could scarcely sing. Her model life is a beautiful example for her associates well worthy imitation.

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

'Tis hard to break the tender cords
Where love has bound the heart,
'Tis hard, so hard, to speak the words,
We must forever part.

Yet again we hope to meet them,
When the day of life is fled,
And in heaven with joy to greet them,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

She is safe in the arms of Jesus,
Safe on His gentle breast,
There by His love's extended,
Sweetly her soul is at rest.

God in His heavenly wisdom
Has claimed the boon His love had given,
And though the body molters here
The soul is safe in heaven.

A FRIEND.
